Birdhouse

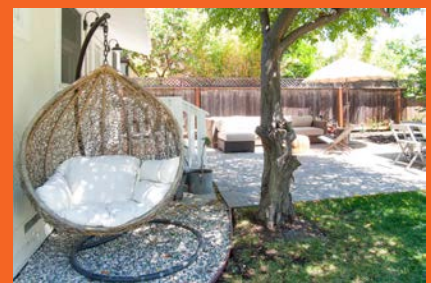

The space

In Palo Alto, there's no better place to stay than a converted garage, where startups like Apple had their humble beginnings. The Birdhouse is a cute standalone studio in my back yard, tastefully decorated, a few yards from the main house where I live, and another standalone studio, the Sugarcube (check out availability on the Sugarcube if you want to rent two separate studios near each other).

The Birdhouse is an old converted garage with exposed high loft ceiling beams and a ceiling fan. There is a full sized desk, a small kitchenette with mini fridge and microwave. There is a Nespresso machine with complimentary pods and a hot kettle with complimentary tea. It has eco-friendly details like bamboo hardwood floors, and a Watersense certified toilet. There is a very small euro-style bathroom with shower, toilet and sink, and quality toiletries. For your convenience: a hair dryer, flatiron, iron and ironing board. A yoga mat is under the bed if you would like to stretch out. There is a newly installed central heat and AC unit, with a remote adjustable degree thermostat.

Steps away from Town and Country Village (with Trader Joe's, CVS, lots of restaurants, bookstore and shops). Just 5-10 minute walk to Whole Foods and downtown Palo Alto (University Ave) with lively restaurants, bars, PACE gallery, and coffee shops. Professorville is one of the oldest neighborhoods in Palo Alto. Enjoy a walk in the neighborhood and admire the quaint cottages, and all the greenery and flowers.
